Speaker Biography

Kate Griffiths, MRCVS

Kate graduated from the University of Bristol in 1984, following which she worked in busy hospital practices in Norfolk and the Thames Valley. Her interest in dermatology developed while living for 2 years in the USA, where she spent time in a dermatology referral practice in Ohio. On returning to the UK, she was awarded the RCVS Certificate in Veterinary Dermatology in 2000 and developed a dermatology referral service for a large practice group in the Thames Valley, in addition to her general practice work.

From 2002 she has lived in the East Midlands and provides a referral dermatology service at the Dovecote Veterinary Hospital, near Derby. From 2007 she has also worked at the University of Nottingham School of Veterinary Medicine and Science, where she is Assistant Professor in Veterinary Dermatology. In this role she teaches dermatology to veterinary undergraduates and delivers CPD courses to veterinary practitioners. She is also an active member of the British Veterinary Dermatology Study Group, for which she has served as Treasurer and President.
